Consulting Division

Langer Equestrian Group Consulting has been involved in a wide range of equestrian consulting projects, including facility design and evaluation, program analysis and development, equestrian event design and production, and many others. LEG's principals build a team of talented and experienced associates who meet the particular needs of each consulting project. As a result, LEG Consulting brings a wide complement of skills to any equestrian related project.

The LEG Consulting Team is experienced in both private and public use facilities. LEG Consulting has participated in the development of facilities whether it's brainstorming ideas on cocktail napkins or working with designers, architects, engineers and management of large, comprehensive, multi-use facilities. In addition, team members analyze and evaluate existing facilities and operations to suggest additions, modifications or improvements in order to better meet the needs and functions of the consulting client.

LEG Consulting contributes to the success of a project through analyzing and developing sound programs related to a facility or an equestrian activity. LEG's analysis of facilities, programs, and activities is enhanced by a strong financial background. The company has assisted groups with developing financial models, educational programs, lesson and training programs, public use activities, and aided in addressing community issues and appropriate uses of a facility. Because of the team's collective experience in both private industry and the public sector, LEG can meet and address the needs of most situations when a consultant is required.
